Review of the Week

On Thursday, September 21st, the AAARCC hosted Alex M. Anderson, Ph.D. Candidate and Cheryl Z. Oreovicz Scholar in Literature, Theory, and Cultural Studies and Ching-Jen Sun, a third-year Ph.D. student and graduate staff in the Comparative Literature program, who both led a discussion of the first chapter of the Purdue English Big Read book, Monkey King: Journey to the West.

Utilizing all the spaces in the AAARCC, the event was attended by 65 participants. Thank you everyone who attended!

On Wednesday, September 20th, as part of our Speaker Series program, the AAARCC hosted communication consultant, writer, and publicist, Ximena N. Beltran Quan Kiu.

Ximena Beltran Quan Kiu shared with us about Owning Your Power - how understanding where we come from (as Asians and Asian Americans are often asked: "Where are you from") and the complexity of our histories is important in paths of success. Ximena also shared about what it means for her to be Asian Latino and how relationship with her mom is a big part of her journey. Thank you, Ximena, for sharing your time with us at Purdue.

Student leader and Senior Advisor for Purdue Filipino Student Association, Phoenix Dimagiba, moderated our conversation yesterday. Thank you, Phoenix, for your great questions!

This event was co-sponsored by: Latino Cultural Center, Brian Lamb School of Communication, College of Liberal Arts, the Roger C. Stewart Leadership and Professional Development Department, and the Latino Center for Wellness and Education.

On Saturday, September 16, 2024, the AAARCC enjoyed the opportunity to table at the 29th annual Global Fest and feature the talent of our Lion Dance Team!
