

Purdue Peace Projects works to solve disputes

Updated: Nov 01, 2013 5:28 AM EST

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind - A group from Purdue University that seeks to resolve disputes among groups in West African countries has its first success story.

Purdue Peace Project Director Stacey Connaughton says a dispute in Berekum, Ghana, had lasted since the year 2000 over who was the chief. And with the December 2012 Ghana parliamentary elections approaching, there was concern about possible political violence.

Purdue got involved in early 2012 and helped local citizens resolve the situation through a peace committee consisting only of local citizens. Last September, Berekum announced it had a new, approved chief.

Throughout its involvement, the Purdue team collects data and interviews people about the conflict and the process to resolve it.

The Purdue Peace project also is working with communities in Liberia and Nigeria to resolve community conflicts.

(Copyright 2013 The Associated Press. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.)

MEMBER CENTER: Create Account | Log In

About | Contact Us | Programming | Contests | Photo Gallery | Employment

Links to the FCC website to view WTHR and/or WALV's on-line public inspection files:

WTHR: <https://stations.fcc.gov/station-profile/WTHR> || WALV: <https://stations.fcc.gov/station-profile/WALV>

Individuals with disabilities may contact Jill Pursell at publicfile@wthr.com, or 317.655.5602, for assistance with access to the public inspection files.

All content © Copyright 2000 - 2014 WorldNow and WTHR. All Rights Reserved. For more information on this site, please read our Privacy Policy and Terms of Service.